

Lifecycle Stage Marketing

Testsigma, Marketing / Growth

Objective

To create a lifecycle marketing strategy to nurture leads at every stage of the buyer journey, from awareness to conversion, ensuring qualified leads progress efficiently to demos and sales conversations.

Why We Want to Do This

Leverage unattended leads: there are categories of leads which are not picked up by sales, or are left dormant after some touchpoints. Reaching out to them with relevant messaging can convert them into leads worth pursuing.

Increase demo bookings: make use of intent signals (asset downloads, free-tool trials) to convert passive leads into SQLs with targeted content and CTAs.

Immediately After Launching Any Asset (ebook, cheatsheet, guide, whitepaper, or free tool)

Task	Owner
Find all relevant pages on the website where we can talk about the asset.	PMM
Create content that talks about the asset with relevance to existing content on each page found. Add a CTA to the new asset, pointing to its download page in the Resource section.	PMM
Communicate to the BDR team that a new asset has been created and encourage them to use it in sales mails/calls.	PMM
Talk about the launched asset in sales mails/calls to drive more downloads.	BDR

The Eight Lead Types Covered Below

- 1 MQLs declared "Nurture by Marketing"
- 2 MQLs declared "Attempted to Contact"
- 3 MQLs declared "Multiple Attempts, No Reply"
- 4 Leads who chose "I just want to learn and get certified"
- 5 Leads who downloaded an eBook/guide/whitepaper
- 6 Leads who downloaded an on-demand webinar
- 7 Leads who registered for a live webinar
- 8 Leads who shared details while trying a free tool

The plan below is designed to nurture, re-engage, or educate each of these lead types based on their current status or interaction with Testsigma, and move them toward a demo booking.
